Summary of Memorandum Opinion and Order on Reconsideration

1. On September 30, 1985, the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC" or "Commission") released the AT&T Structural Relief Order, CC Docket 85-26 (50 FR 40379; October 3, 1985), which enabled the American Telephone and Telegraph Company ("AT&T") to provide customer premises equipment ("CPE") free of the structural separation requirements established in the Second Computer Inquiry (77 FCC 2d 384; 84 FCC 2d 50; 88 FCC 2d 512; 893 F 2d 198; FCC 84-190). The Commission also imposed four kinds of nonstructural requirements to limit the potential for AT&T to engage in anticompetitive conduct in providing CPE on an unseparated basis. The FCC required AT&T: (1) To adhere to a modified version of the Commission's network disclosure rules; (2) to refrain from discriminating in favor of CPE customers in providing network services; (3) at the customer's request, to disclose its customer proprietary network information ("CPNI") to non-AT&T CPE vendors and/or to withhold such CPNI from AT&T CPE personnel; and (4) to establish accounting procedures for the proper allocation of joint and common costs between AT&T's regulated network services and its unregulated CPE activities. To ensure effective implementation of those safeguards, AT&T also was required to file plans describing its implementation of the nondiscrimination, CPNI, and accounting safeguards and to submit monthly reports documenting that the intervals for the installation and maintenance of its network services were not affected by a customer's brand of CPE. Eight parties filed for reconsideration of various aspects of the AT&T Structural Relief Order.

2. In the Memorandum Opinion and Order on Reconsideration, the Commission concluded that its decisions to remove the structural separation requirements from AT&T's CPE operations and to establish nonstructural safeguards are fundamentally sound and not in need of major revision. The FCC, however, did clarify or modify three of the nonstructural safeguards.

3. First, the Commission modified its network disclosure safeguards by requiring AT&T to disclose to the public technical information about new or changed network services 12, rather than 6, months prior to the introduction of the service. In addition, the FCC clarified that AT&T should disclose newly discovered information about its operational network services and should disclose information to entities engaged in the leasing of CPE.

4. Second, the Commission clarified that its nondiscrimination concerns include the quality of network services and accordingly required AT&T to amend its nondiscrimination plan to describe with particularity its procedures for ensuring that such discrimination in service quality does not occur. The Commission also required AT&T to obtain an annual independent audit to ensure that those procedures are followed.

5. Third, the FCC modified its CPNI safeguards to require AT&T to notify its WATS and private line customers of the Commission's rules on CPNI through a one-time insert in their network services bills.

6. In addition, pursuant to the nondiscrimination guidelines of the AT&T Structural Relief Order, the Commission required that if AT&T provides joint installation and maintenance services for its CPE and transmission circuits, it must coordinate with independent CPE vendors to make those joint services available for independent CPE and AT&T's transmission circuits.

Ordering Clause

7. Accordingly, it is ordered, that pursuant to 47 U.S.C. 154 (i) and (j), 201, 202, 203, 205, 218, and 403, and 5 U.S.C. 553, the Petitions for Reconsideration filed in this proceeding are denied except as provided herein.

William J. Tricarico,
Secretary.
